You may already know that All Manner of Things is already glad to offer pro-bono services to a range of individuals and organisations. However, that does not mean the giving goes one way. Effective mentoring relationships benefit both mentor and mentee, in and of themselves.

So...whilst All Manner of Things gratefully relies on regular full fee-paying clients to maintain its services, there are times when it is appropriate to just... share in an edifying exchange or...transition to beneficial barter! On a few notable occasions I have shared the love by doing what I do for home-baked bread, fruit and vegetables (both home-grown and store bought), potted orchids, IT support, design prowess, or peer-to-peer mentoring...if we enter the territory where that kind of exchange seems appropriate we'll discuss it and come to an arrangement!
